Leadership and Climate Change: Impacts, Innovation and Interdependence

Beijing, China, 8-14 November 2009

Climate change is a real and urgent global threat. This international LEAD event, taking place just 3 weeks before a global climate deal is discussed in Copenhagen, will gather together more than 150 emerging leaders from diverse sectors and countries to explore the leadership challenges and opportunities presented by climate change.

“Being a LEAD Fellow means having a better understanding of the world and its challenges... Collaborating and learning with each other to enact positive change.”

Mariana Paál Fernandes,
Brazilian Association for Leadership Development (ABDL)

Participants will gain knowledge, leadership skills, and self-awareness to enhance their capacity as change-makers.

They will also learn from and be inspired by each other, sharing their experiences from around the world, building valuable personal and professional networks, and identifying future opportunities for collaboration.

“Being a LEAD Fellow could change my destiny...
The struggle to preserve the Earth needs a critical mass of concerned people from different sectors and environments. LEAD provides the training and motivation for attaining that critical mass.”

Taofik Oloruko-Oba, Senior Product Manager, Swiss Pharma Nigeria
